Cons

Questions

The manual of Cons was never meant to be read in a seminar. It contains many details that are important to use Cons as a tool but that may obstruct the principal features. On the other hand, many conceptual questions are left unanswered.

We are diverging from our usual procedure and will not work in groups of five first. Instead, try to answer with the people next to you in groups of two or three the following questions. Today, we will spend more time in a class-room discussion.

1. What are the important concepts and new ideas with respect to Make? Make a list with more important concepts coming first.
2. What do you like about the paper, what don't you like?
